DBA reserves the right to publicize them in the press and in promotional materials.

JUDGING INFORMATION

A panel of judges will be chosen from recognized A panel of judges will be chosen from recognized organizations and trade professions. These judges will define the standards for quality, based on their technical expertise. The selection process is rigorous; each entry is assigned a number to ensure anonymity. The judges reserve the right to relocate an entry to another category, if they deem it appropriate. Judges with involvement in a particular entry will abstain from judging that entry. The judges reserve the right to decline to nominate a winner in a particular category, and also, the right to present special judges' awards, as they see fit. The judges' decisions are final, and no correspondence will be entered into. All information regarding the judges and results will be embargoed for publication until after the Awards Presentation.

JUDGING CRITERIA

Entries will be judged based on contribution to world architecture, culture, overall impact (project has created needed living, retail, and recreational space enhanced the value of the immediate community), innovative design and construction (project stands out among others in its location.) New products or design approaches used by architect, engineer or subcontractors); respect for people, context: environmental awareness and appropriateness worldwide. Projects should demonstrate that they are designed Thus protecting occupant health and improving employee productivity. Using innovation and design to reduce waste, pollution and environmental degradation. Project should demonstrate outstanding social responsibility towards the community and environment. Projects should highlight how the strategy has helped the social well-being of the community and how this has had a positive effect. Judges will judge only companies in good standing, noticing remarkable trajectories, and exceptional dedication and involvement with their community.

NOTIFICATION

Finalists and Winners will be notified via email five weeks prior to the award presentation. Adhering to our strict policies, the President, CEO or Business Owner must be present to receive the award. If he/she cannot be present, the DBA reserves the right to select the next runner up to receive the prize. After being notified of the company's standing, the award can't be publicly announced until the date of the award presentation; any premature revelation may void the accolade. As part of this tribute, finalists and winners will be part of a massive publicity campaign that will last one complete calendar year. The event video featuring the winning companies and the book of winners will be prominently accessible through the DBA website, and other sources.

Please note that if you are selected as one of the five finalists, your company must undergo an examination by third party auditors who will travel to the project site. Your company will be responsible for their expenses (if applicable).
